

WELCOMING & DISCIPLING:

Many LGBTQ people have experienced the church as an inhospitable place in which to bring their full selves. At the same time, many of those same people long for churches where they can experience much more than mere "affirmation": they want to be transformed disciples of Jesus. How, then, can we learn to welcome people more hospitably? And how can we become communities where God's sanctifying power is known and tasted more directly?

Join us for a time of studying these questions together. Wesley Hill, a celibate gay Christian and a priest in The Episcopal Church, will lead an exploration of Scripture and culture as we meet to discuss these important matters.
